BECOMING A SIAA MEMBER

WHO WE ARE

The Space Industry Association of Australia (SIAA) is the national peak body for Australia's space industry.

Formulating national policies and strategies, SIAA speaks with authority and credibility on behalf of its members on issues connected to the development of the Australian space industry.

SIAA has previously hosted the 2017 International Astronautical Congress (IAC) in Adelaide, which catalysed the formation of the Australian Space Agency.

In 2022, SIAA successfully led the Australian bid to host the IAC2025 in Sydney. SIAA led a bid team consisting of the Australian Space Agency and NSW Government.

WHY MEMBERS JOIN

SIAA members join the association to raise their profile, build their networks, expand their engagement with decision makers, and receive access to the latest industry information, insights, and opportunities.

Corporate members are promoted by SIAA and have access to the SIAA logo to acknowledge their leadership role in our industry. SIAA members are able to join SIAA committees to shape industry policy and to stand for election as a director on the SIAA board. SIAA members are also offered the opportunity to participate in private industry briefings.

All memberships include access to SIAA events throughout the year, with SIAA Corporate and Foundation members able to access a limited number of free tickets to SIAA's annual Southern Space conference.

“

We have a proven track record in leading the industry's voice to the media, public, and government to achieve tangible results for the industry.

TESTIMONIALS

The Space Industry Association of Australia has played an essential role in the growth of Australia's space ecosystem. Their deep connections with government and business leaders at all levels mean that they can be a strong advocate, not only for members but for the industry as a whole. Gilmour Space looks forward to working closely with the SIAA to grow a vibrant and sustainable space industry in Australia.
